FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Hill Laboratories Supports the Foundation for Chiropractic Progress

CARMICHAEL, Calif. -- Feb. 2, 2012 -- The Foundation for Chiropractic Progress (F4CP), architect of the chiropractic profession's longest running public awareness campaign, is pleased to announce that Hill Laboratories, manufacturers of premier medical equipment, pledged an initial $6,000 in support of the F4CP. Their financial contribution will help to advance the successes of the profession's awareness campaign, which generated over 3.5 billion positive impressions in 2011.

"Hill Laboratories is excited to support the chiropractic profession through the F4CP," states Howard Hill, president, Hill Laboratories. "Our goal as a company is to improve the chiropractic profession through action and we believe that the F4CP is an important partner in this journey."

Established in 1945, Hill Laboratories is a globalized family business located in Pennsylvania. In their 4th generation, Howard Hill and his son, Benjamin Hill, lead the company in producing innovative, affordable and quality chiropractic tables and therapy equipment. In high demand, each table is custom built to order, hand crafted to each doctor's specifications. They also boast a national and global dealer network providing local sales and personalized customer service. Their company mission is simple, to improve the way doctors are able to treat their patients.

Kent S. Greenawalt, chairman, F4CP, shares, "I commend Hill Laboratories for recognizing the value of our positive press campaign. As we continue to build our support, we anticipate greater levels of understanding and success for both the profession and most importantly, the patients who deserve to know more about the special healthcare that only a doctor of chiropractic can provide."
