Students of Chiropractic donate wedding gifts to the Foundation for Chiropractic Progress
Life University newlyweds choose to support the longest running chiropractic public awareness campaign over party favors and gifts

Carmichael, CA – July 27, 2009 – The Foundation for Chiropractic Progress (F4CP), a not-for-profit organization dedicated to the positive promotion of the chiropractic profession, is pleased to announce that recently married couple, Brian Davis and Sarah Hudak, have donated $500 to F4CP. In addition to asking their wedding guests for donations, the happily married couple was able to raise these funds by contributing to F4CP in lieu of party favors.

“Everyone spends money on weddings, if we are going to spend the money anyway, we would rather spend it on a good cause,” says Hudak, an Ohio native. “As we get into practice, we plan on continuing to contribute, but for right now we figured this would be the best way to reach out and do something positive for chiropractic.”

The young couple met at Life University, where they fell in love with each other and the profession. “I never thought I would be a chiropractor, now it’s by far the absolute most amazing decision I have ever made and I don’t regret one minute of it,” raves Hudak. When they decided to give back to chiropractic, F4CP was a clear choice. “I came across the Jerry Rice ad in ESPN the magazine,” notes Massachusetts native Davis. “I was floored by the fact that the Foundation was able to hit crowds that many have been unable to reach.”

After graduating in December, the couple plans to open a practice in Mount Pleasant, SC where they will focus on brain based chiropractic and functional neurology.
